Academic units may set their own deadlines in advance of The Graduate School's manuscript clearance deadlines. In the absence of deadlines set by academic units, we strongly recommend that students defend at least 1 week prior to the post-defense deadline. Missing a semester deadline will result in the student automatically becoming ineligible to graduate in the current term.

Important Notice: While students are allowed to defend up until the semester's post-defense submission deadline, this is with the understanding that ALL content changes must be completed and approved in the Portal by the committee prior to the submission of the manuscript. No deadline extensions will be granted for students who defended close to the deadline and were unable to complete their changes in time.
