

College of Education

Department of Communication Sciences and Special Education

The Department of Communication Sciences and Special Education invites applications for the position of Clinical Assistant Professor with expertise in Speech-Language Pathology. This position is clinical, instructional, and collaborative. It is expected that the individual will work closely with students and faculty, as well as the community. This is a 9-month, non-tenure-track faculty position to begin Fall semester 2020.

Responsibilities will include all of the following and other related assignments:

- Clinical education and supervision of graduate students, including students learning to provide high-quality evidence-based services
- Provision of direct speech-language pathology clinical services
- Instruction of clinical and/or academic material
- Interprofessional collaboration
- Engaging in departmental, college, university, community, and/or professional service

Required Qualifications include all of the following:

- Earned master's (M.A., M.S., M.Ed., or equivalent) or doctoral (Ph.D., SLP.D., or equivalent) degree in communication disorders, speech-language pathology, or a related field
- Certificate of Clinical Competence in Speech-Language Pathology from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association
- Eligibility for Georgia licensure in speech-language pathology
- Five years of clinical experience in speech-language pathology

Preferred Qualifications for this position include:

- Clinical one or more years with adult populations
- Expertise in the areas of neurogenic communication disorders, voice disorders, and voice modification services
- One or more years in clinical instruction and supervision

The appointment will be for the regular 9-month academic year. Additional opportunities for summer employment may be available. Salary will be competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications.

Applications should be submitted through <http://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/124679> and will require all of the following:

- A letter of application specifically responsive to the position's responsibilities and required qualifications as described above
- A complete curriculum vitae
- All undergraduate and graduate transcripts

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

- The names of three persons who can provide letters of reference. If the candidate prefers his or her interest in this position to remain confidential, state this request in the list of references; references will then not be contacted until the search committee has corresponded with the applicant.

Questions may be addressed to the search committee chair (Ms. Alisa Schultz, alnorris@uga.edu) or to the department head (Dr. Cynthia Vail, cvail@uga.edu).

Review of applications will begin November 25, 2019, and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Georgia (www.uga.edu) is a land grant/sea grant institution. Its main campus is located in Athens, Georgia. Athens is known for its music, art, and food as well as its accessibility to the Atlanta area (see www.visitathensga.com and www.georgia.gov). The Communication Sciences and Disorders program offers a bachelor's degree, a CAA-accredited master's degree, and the only research doctorate in communication sciences and disorders in Georgia. Information about the full CSSE department can be found at www.coe.uga.edu/csse.

The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer, and the CSSE department encourages applications from all qualified persons. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, gender identity, sexual orientation, or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

This position is contingent on the availability of funding.